

Government of the District of Columbia
Office of the Chief Financial Officer

Disclosure and Authorization for Consumer and Investigative Consumer Reports
Pursuant to the Fair Credit Reporting Act and Authorization for Release of Information

In connection with my employment, application for employment, or as a contract employee with the Office of the Chief Financial Officer, Government of the District of Columbia (“the OCFO”), I understand that the OCFO will conduct a background investigation, which includes requesting from a consumer reporting agency a consumer report or investigative consumer report, as defined by the Fair Credit Reporting Act (15 U.S.C. 1681).

I understand that an investigative consumer report is a special type of consumer report that is obtained through interviews, and may contain information about my character, general reputation, personal characteristics and/or mode of living. Upon my written request, within a reasonable period of time, a complete disclosure of the nature and scope of that investigation will be made to me in writing within five days of the date on which the request was received.

I hereby authorize the OCFO to request a consumer report or investigative consumer report about me for employment-related purposes during the course of my employment or affiliation with the OCFO to the extent allowed by law, and acknowledge that that this Disclosure and Authorization for Release of Information will be valid, now and during the course of my OCFO employment or affiliation, in original, faxed, copied or electronic form. I acknowledge that I have received “Summary of Your Rights Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act,” which is attached as page 2 of this form.

I further authorize any investigator or other duly accredited agent of the OCFO conducting my background investigation to obtain any information relating to my activities from individuals, educational institutions, corporations, employers, courts, criminal justice agencies, law enforcement agencies, licensing agencies, governmental agencies or departments, including tax administration agencies and military services, credit bureaus, consumer reporting agencies, collection agencies, retail business establishments, residential management agents, or other sources of information. This information may include, but is not limited to, my academic, residential, achievement, performance, attendance, disciplinary, employment history, driving record, criminal history record information, and financial and credit information.

I agree to release the aforesaid from any liability for collecting that information. I authorize custodians of records and other sources of information pertaining to me to release such information upon request of the investigator or other duly accredited representative of the OCFO regardless of any previous agreement to the contrary.

A Summary of Your Rights Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act

The federal Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) promotes the accuracy, fairness and privacy of information in the files of consumer reporting agencies. There are many types of consumer reporting agencies, including credit bureaus and specialty agencies (such as agencies that sell information about check writing histories, medical records, and rental history records). Here is a summary of your major rights under the FCRA. For more information, including information about additional rights, go to www.ftc.gov/credit or write to: Consumer Response Center, Room 130-A, Federal Trade Commission, 600 Pennsylvania Ave. N.W., Washington, DC 20580.

• You must be told if information in your file has been used against you. Anyone who uses a credit report or another type of consumer report to deny your application for credit, insurance, or employment – or to take another adverse action against you – must tell you, and must give you the name, address and phone number of the agency that provided the information.

• You have the right to know what is in your file. You may request and obtain all the information about you in the files of a consumer reporting agency (your "file disclosure"). You will be required to provide proper identification, which may include your Social Security number. In many cases, the disclosure will be free. You are entitled to a free file disclosure if:

- A person has taken adverse action against you because of information in your credit report;
- You are the victim of identify theft and place a fraud alert in your file;
- Your file contains inaccurate information as a result of fraud;
- You are on public assistance;
- You are unemployed but expect to apply for employment within 60 days.

In addition, by September 2005 all consumers will be entitled to one free disclosure every 12 months upon request from each nationwide credit bureau and from nationwide specialty consumer reporting agencies. See www.ftc.gov/credit for additional information.

• You have the right to ask for a credit score. Credit scores are numerical summaries of your credit worthiness based on information from credit bureaus. You may request a credit score from consumer reporting agencies that create scores or distribute scores used in residential real property loans, but you will have to pay for it. In some mortgage transactions, you will receive credit score information for free from the mortgage lender.

• You have the right to dispute incomplete or inaccurate information. If you identify information in your file that is incomplete or inaccurate and report it to the consumer reporting agency, the agency must investigate unless your dispute is frivolous. See www.ftc.gov/credit for an explanation of dispute procedures.

• Consumer reporting agencies must correct or delete inaccurate, incomplete or unverifiable information. Inaccurate, incomplete or unverifiable information must be removed or corrected, usually within 30 days. However, a consumer reporting agency may continue to report information it has verified as accurate.

• Consumer reporting agencies may not report outdated negative information. In most cases, a consumer reporting agency may not report negative information that is more than seven years old, or bankruptcies that are more than 10 years old.

• Access to your file is limited. A consumer reporting agency may provide information about you only to people with a valid need - usually to consider an application with a creditor, insurer, employer, landlord, or other business. The FCRA specifies those with a valid need for access.

• You must give your consent for reports to be provided to employers. A consumer reporting agency may not give out information about you to your employer, or a potential employer, without your written consent given to the employer. Written consent generally is not required in the trucking industry. For more information, go to www.ftc.gov/credit.

• You may limit "prescreened" offers of credit and insurance you get based on information in your credit report. Unsolicited "prescreened" offers for credit and insurance must include a toll-free phone number you can call if you choose to remove your name and address from the lists these offers are based on. You may opt-out with the nationwide credit bureaus at 1-888-567-8688.

• You may seek damages from violators. If a consumer reporting agency, or, in some cases, a user of consumer reports or a furnisher of information to a consumer reporting agency violates the FCRA, you may be able to sue in state or federal court.

• Identify theft victims and active duty military personnel have additional rights. For more information, visit www.ftc.gov/credit.

States may enforce the FCRA, and many states have their own consumer reporting laws. In some cases, you may have more rights under state law. For more information, contact your state or local consumer protection agency or your state Attorney General. Federal enforcers are:
